Domain, abode, shelter, home --where we choose to lay our heads every night influences who we are and how we live in ways that we often take for granted. Architect and microbuilder Derek “Deek” Diedricksen takes nothing for granted when it comes to building a space to inhabit. He makes tiny masterpieces out of salvaged materials and sheer ingenuity. The Tiny Art Cabin Weekend with Deek Diedricksen is an opportunity to witness the thinking, imagination, technique, materials, teamwork, and philosophy that go into building a tiny house. Come watch as he builds two tiny art cabins inside the Great Room at Fuller Craft Museum with his team of builders and ordinary people who have registered to participate in the build. Inspire the builder inside.

Tiny House Party and Tour of a Tiny House

Friday night, February 5 is a festive pre-build “Tiny House Party” with an opportunity to tour a real live tiny house on the grounds of Fuller Craft Museum courtesy of Jamaica Cottage Shop of South Londonderry, VT. The evening will also include short talks by guest builders (see full schedule below), food, drink, music, live painting, a tiny house film, and Deek booksigning. Meet and greet the people engaged to build in the workshop.

The 2-Day Tiny Art Cabin Workshop
